Introduction

Below is a list of consumer reporting companies updated for 2020.¹ Consumer reporting companies collect information and provide reports to other companies about you. These companies use these reports to inform decisions about providing you with credit, employment, residential rental housing, insurance, and in other decision-making situations. The list below includes the three nationwide consumer reporting companies and several other reporting companies that focus on certain market areas and consumer segments. The list gives you tips so you can determine which of these companies may be important to you. It also makes it easier for you to take advantage of your legal rights to (1) obtain the information in your consumer reports, and (2) dispute suspected inaccuracies in your reports with companies as needed.

Who can see your consumer reports?

Consumer reporting companies must follow legal restrictions but generally can provide consumer reports and risk scores to an array of businesses, including:

- Lenders (including those that offer credit cards, home, payday, personal, title, auto including auto leasing, student loans, and security deposit financing and lease guarantees on home rentals)
- Employers, volunteer organizations, and government agencies to determine eligibility for government assistance (employment screening)
- Landlords and residential real estate management companies (tenant screening)
- Banks, credit unions, payment processors and retail stores that accept personal checks (check screening)

¹ This list is current as of January 2020. It includes entities that have identified themselves as consumer reporting companies or have indicated they provide consumers access to their personal consumer reports when requested. The list incorporates information from the companies' own self-descriptions that has not been independently verified by the Bureau. This list does not cover every company in the industry. It is not intended to be all-inclusive. Nor does it reflect determinations as to whether any particular entity is subject to the Fair Credit Reporting Act. Furthermore, presence on, or absence from, this list does not indicate whether the consumer reporting company is subject to the Bureau's supervisory or enforcement authority. To provide your suggested corrections or additions to the list, contact the Bureau at CFPB_CCPD2@cfpb.gov and include "Consumer Reporting Company List" in the subject line.

- Companies that market and sell products and services specifically to lower-income consumers and subprime credit applicants, such as short-term lending and rent-to-own businesses among others
- Debt buyers and collectors
- Insurance companies (health, life, property insurance screening)
- Communications and utility companies (e.g., mobile phone, pay TV, electric, gas, water)
- Retail stores for product return fraud and abuse screening as well as retail stores that offer financing such as appliance and rent-to-own businesses, among others
- Gaming casinos that extend credit to consumers and/or accept personal checks

You can get rejected without warning

With the exception of employment screening, users of consumer reports generally do not warn you in advance if they are about to take an adverse action against you based in whole or in part on your consumer report. Outside of employment screening, adverse action notifications are provided after the fact, say, when maybe it's too late and you have already been rejected for a loan, residential rental property or auto lease. The accuracy and completeness of your consumer reporting data, therefore, is extremely important.

The good news is you have a meaningful role to play to help ensure your data is accurate and complete. The first step is to request your consumer reports from the consumer reporting companies you think might be important to you. The second step is to review your reports closely. The third step is to dispute suspected inaccuracies as needed. This Introduction describes these steps in detail, and also provides helpful information about how you can take greater control over your consumer reporting data.

How to request a report?

Under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act \(FCRA\), all consumer reporting companies are required to provide you a copy of the information in your report if you request it. Many must do so every twelve months for free upon your request. Additionally, they must give you a free copy of your information if you request it after an adverse action is taken against you based on information in your report from that company and under other specific circumstances. All consumer reporting companies must provide you with a copy of your information for a reasonable fee (for calendar year 2020, the maximum allowable fee is $12.50). Requesting copies of your own consumer reports does not hurt your credit scores. For companies required to provide the information in your report for free annually upon request, they must do so within fifteen days of receiving your request.

Not every consumer reporting company will have information on every consumer. A reporting company that specializes in insurance claim data, for example, will likely not have information about you if you have never filed an insurance claim. Also, some consumers with limited and/or out-of-date credit histories (sometimes known as “credit invisibles”) may not have enough information for credit reporting companies to have reports about them. You may be one of those consumers, although if you are making purchases using credit, or if you have credit that is delinquent and is being reported on your credit reports by a debt collector, it’s unlikely.

You can get your report from most of the companies in this list for free

Most consumer reporting companies – especially the bigger nationwide companies – will provide your information to you for free. We tell you which do. A few companies in the list will also provide you with a free risk score if you request it. We tell you which of those do as well. Finally, your financial service providers might also provide you with free access to risk scores. Frequently these are the same scores they use to manage their credit relationships with you. Upon review of this list and the helpful web links in it, you might decide that exercising your free legal rights and taking advantage of free services are sufficient for your needs. Think carefully about paid credit monitoring. There are so many different kinds of scores available in today’s marketplace, the credit scores and reports you buy or obtain from a third party website might not be the ones lenders use to make decisions about you.

To order your report from a company listed below, click on the company link we provide. Some companies have separate forms for requests by postal mail. We provide links to those forms for you.

Know when to check a report

It's important to fact-check your consumer credit reports from the three nationwide consumer reporting companies (Equifax, TransUnion, Experian) every twelve months to ensure they are accurate and complete, especially if you intend to purchase a home or car with credit, or otherwise intend to apply for credit in the future. By virtue of a 2019 legal settlement, you can now also get six additional free Equifax credit reports per year, as we describe below. Roughly 90% of consumers with credit files aren't taking advantage of the free benefit to request their credit reports.² There isn't just "one" credit risk score, so it's important to focus on the reporting information itself from which risk scores are derived. If you are applying for a job, to rent a home, or insurance policy, also fact-check your background screening reports to ensure there are no errors. We give you detailed tips on when best to check those reports in the sections below as appropriate.

Data breaches are an unfortunate reality. If you have been, or fear you may become, a victim of identity theft, fact-check your reports and consider blocking third-party access to your consumer reporting data through a security "freeze." Below we tell you which company websites offer additional information for you about your options to block third-party access to your consumer reporting data for certain purposes.

Finally, be aware of your options to take greater control of your consumer reporting data, including also, if you want, to opt-out from credit and insurance direct marketing you might not want to receive. There are also steps you can take to help keep your personal information secure. These steps may include enrolling in identity theft protection services. However, it's important to understand the limits of identity theft protection services, and to consider the free alternatives described herein, and by clicking on the hyperlinks we provide. As the FTC says, "no service can protect you from having your personal information stolen."

You have the right to dispute the information in your reports

If you find information in your consumer report that you believe is inaccurate or incomplete, you have the legal right to dispute the report's content with the consumer reporting company and the company that shared the information to the reporting company, such as your lender. Under the FCRA, companies must conduct – free of charge – a reasonable investigation of your dispute. The company that has provided the incorrect information must correct the error and notify all of the consumer reporting companies to whom it provided the inaccurate information.

² See Consumer Fin. Prot. Bureau, Consumer Voices on Credit Reports and Scores, at 7 (Feb. 2015), available at <https://www.consumerfinance.gov/data-research/research-reports/consumer-voices-on-credit-reports-and-scores>.

Of course, if your information is current and accurate, even if negative, you will not be able to remove it. Some may claim that they can remove negative information, or even “sweep clean” your entire credit history, but if the information in your report is accurate and current – beware! – it’s probably a credit repair scam.

You can learn more about disputing a reporting error on our website, and what to do if you see the same error in more than one report. You can also submit a complaint to us. We will forward your complaint to the company and work to get you a response.

We’re here if you have complaints about your consumer reports

We handle consumer reporting complaints about report accuracy and completeness errors, and other consumer reporting topics, such as, if you are dissatisfied with a company’s investigation of an earlier dispute, if you believe your consumer report was used improperly, if you have problems getting access to your own consumer reports, or if you are dissatisfied with consumer reporting products and services provided to you, such as credit monitoring and identity protection services including security freeze, fraud alert and active duty alert requests. We also handle complaints about credit repair services. We help consumers connect with financial companies to understand issues, fix errors, and get direct responses about problems.

Nationwide consumer reporting companies

Equifax, TransUnion, and Experian

These are the three big nationwide providers of consumer reports.

Equifax, TransUnion, and Experian reports contain:

- Information about your payment history as submitted by credit card companies, home and auto lenders (and leasing companies), and other creditors.
- How much credit you have and use.
- Information from debt collectors including unpaid medical debt that is greater than 180 days delinquent from date of service, and past-due debt from cable and phone bills.
- Some public information like bankruptcies.
- Inquiries from creditors who have requested your credit reports when you apply for credit.

Free report:

Each of these companies will provide one free credit report every 12 months if you request it. As a result of a 2019 settlement, all U.S. consumers may also request up to six free copies of their Equifax credit report during any twelve-month period. These free copies will be provided to you in addition to any free reports to which you are entitled under federal law.

AnnualCreditReport.com will route you to any of the three companies you select. Before giving you a copy of your report, each company will ask you a few detailed questions to authenticate your identity. These questions are designed to be those only you can answer. They might be questions such as asking you to verify information about an existing or closed loan. The question could ask you to identify a street address where you have never lived and you would respond that it was not an address where you lived. The purpose of these questions is to protect the security of your information.

If you run into difficulty getting your free Equifax, TransUnion, or Experian annual credit report(s) from AnnualCreditReport.com or its toll-free phone number provided above, try contacting the respective institution(s) directly for help:

- Equifax, (866) 349-5191 (Option 1)
- TransUnion, (800) 680-7289 (Option 1)
- Experian (888) 397-3742 (Option 2 followed by Option 1)

Freeze your report:

Each of these companies offers you the option to freeze your report with them if you request it. By law each must freeze and unfreeze your credit file for free if you request it. You also can get a free freeze for your children who are under 16. If you are someone's guardian, conservator or have a valid power of attorney, you can get a free freeze for that person, too. Below is each company's freeze contact information:

- Equifax, (800) 349-9960 (Automated, Option 1) or (888) 298-0045 (Live)
- TransUnion, (888) 909-8872 (Option 3)
- Experian, (888) 397-3742 (Option 1 followed by Option 2)

Equifax, TransUnion, and Experian will provide free credit monitoring services to active duty servicemembers and to National Guard members, by visiting the active military web pages of each company:

- Equifax Active Military
- TransUnion Active Military
- Experian Active Military

Employment screening

Employment screening companies provide verification information such as credit history, employment, salary, and education and professional license verification to employers and others. They may also provide residential address history and Social Security Number verification; criminal arrest and conviction information, as well as fingerprint information from state and federal criminal record databases; motor vehicle and driver's record information; drug and alcohol testing and health screening information; and non-profit and volunteer activity verification. Many employment screening companies won't have information on you unless you authorized an employer or other end-user to obtain a report. If possible, when you give your authorization, ask for the name(s) of the employment screening company being used. Contact those reporting companies to fact-check your reports. If the employer is checking your credit history in separate reports, from one or all three of the nationwide providers of consumer reports listed above, request and review those reports too.

Check and bank screening

Banks and credit unions use check and bank screening reports to help decide whether to offer you a checking account or to cash a check. For example, you may have negative information in your report if you had a checking account before and you have an unpaid negative balance on that account, such as from an overdraft that you have not repaid and the account was closed or if you were suspected of fraud related to the account. If you have been a victim of bank and/or check-writing fraud, or have had prior difficulties opening or closing a bank account (such as being denied an account), review your check and bank screening report(s) and dispute them if inaccurate.
